

Publication Policy

Sefer expects its editors, authors, and reviewers to respect the following principles. Any manuscript that is found not in compliance with these principles may be rejected from publication.

1. The work submitted for publication by Sefer is an original piece of research;
2. The work has not been previously published. Any form of plagiarism is unacceptable. Self-plagiarism, i.e., the attempt to republish one's own previously published work without significant changes to it, is similarly unacceptable;
3. The authors will refrain from submitting the work for publication elsewhere while it is reviewed by Sefer, and following a positive outcome of the review process;
4. All sources in the manuscript must be properly cited and referenced
5. Sefer Editorial Board will evaluate submitted manuscripts solely on their intellectual merits
6. Each editor will report to the Editorial Board any conflicts of interest and respect the decision of the Board;
7. All submissions undergo a double-blind peer review process;
8. When two reviewers have been submitted their evaluations, Editorial Board will examine the reviews and decide regarding the submission. Occasionally, a decision is made based on more than two reviews, or a single review, which can be a review by the subject editor
9. A reviewer will evaluate the submitted manuscript solely basing on the criteria outlined in the peer review form. A reviewer should notify the editors of any potential conflicts of interest
10. A reviewer will maintain strict confidentiality in matters pertaining to the review process
11. Each reviewer will notify the editors of any potential reason for rejecting the manuscript
